RE: 340B Pricing Clarification for Theracom, LLC Contract Renewal

The 340B ceiling price refers to the maximum amount that a manufacturer can charge a covered entity for the purchase of a 340B covered outpatient drug. The 340B ceiling price is statutorily defined as the Average Manufacturer Price (AMP) reduced by the rebate percentage, which is commonly referred to as the Unit Rebate Amount (URA). The federal Health and Human Resources Service Administration (HRSA) obtains the AMP and URA data from the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS) as part of quarterly reporting for the Medicaid Drug Rebate Program. This figure is then multiplied by the package size and case package size to produce a price that is used in the marketplace for purchasing covered outpatient drugs. For example, the AMP minus the URA indicates the cost of one pill. HRSA calculates the price of the total number of pills in the bottle (package size), and then the price of the multiple packages (case package size), which results in the 340B ceiling price and the corresponding quantity at which covered entities actually purchase the covered outpatient drug.

To clarify, 340B prices are set by HRSA and vendors cannot charge more than this price, which is not provided quarterly and overseen by HRSA. The WV Family Planning Program understands and accepts the inevitability of price changes throughout the contract period.
