Appendix A Testimony List of Andrea C. Crane

I. INTRODUCTION

The Columbia Group, Inc. proposes to provide consulting services to the Consumer Advocate Division of the Public Service Commission of the State of West Virginia (“CAD”) on revenue requirements issues with regard to the recent base rate case filing of West Virginia-American Water Company (“WVA” or “Company”), PSC Case No. 08-0900-W-42T. On May 30, 2008, the Company filed for a base rate increase of $14.7 million or approximately 12.37% over pro forma revenue at present rates.

This proposal includes the provision of revenue requirement services, including a development of rate base, pro forma revenues, pro forma operating expenses, and pro forma tax claims. It also includes a review of depreciation claims to ensure that pro forma depreciation expense is consistent with CAD’s recommended utility plant in service claim. This proposal does not include a detailed review of the depreciation rates used by WVA.

Andrea C. Crane, President of The Columbia Group, Inc., is the proposed witness for this engagement.

II. BUSINESS ORGANIZATION

This proposal is being made by The Columbia Group, Inc. through its office located at 199 Ethan Allen Highway, Ridgefield, Connecticut 06877. (Mailing address: PO Box 810, Georgetown, CT 06829) The Columbia Group, Inc. was founded in 1981 as a public interest utility consulting firm. Columbia is a full service utility consulting group. We currently have a professional staff of five consultants. Members of Columbia have presented direct testimony in over 800 dockets across the United States. These dockets have included matters relating to water, wastewater, gas, electric, telephone, navigation, solid waste and cable television facilities.

The regulatory work of Columbia personnel has been on behalf of divisions of consumer advocate, state regulatory commissions, departments of attorney general, municipal utilities and municipalities. Columbia personnel do not testify on behalf of investor-owned utilities.

All work outlined in this proposal will be performed by Columbia personnel under the supervision of Andrea C. Crane, President of the firm. Ms. Crane would also serve as the witness on this engagement.

III. PROJECT SUMMARY

This engagement will include a review of the filing made by the Company, critical evaluation of that filing, development of proposed adjustments, formulation of recommendations on selected policy issues, and development of a recommended revenue requirement. As we develop our revenue requirement recommendation, we will also work closely with CAD and its other consultants.

Our analysis begins with a determination of the appropriateness of the test year selected by the Company. In this regard, we will review the Company's claim for plant in service, depreciation reserve, cash working capital, materials and supplies, other reserves and prepayments, contributions in aid of construction, and other elements. Our analysis will be directed toward ensuring that the Company a) has included appropriate elements, and only appropriate elements, in its rate base claims and b) has correctly quantified those elements. Possible issues to be addressed include forecasts of construction, claims for construction work in progress, the treatment of non-cash items in cash working capital, development of materials and supplies, and elimination of contributions in aid of construction from rate base. We will utilize the overall cost of capital recommendation developed by the CAD or its other consultants to determine the required operating income for the Company, given our recommended rate base.

We will then evaluate the Company's pro forma revenue claims, at present rates. This evaluation includes recommendations regarding normalizations and annualizations for such factors as number of customers, consumption, weather, and other variables.

Coincident with developing a pro forma revenue recommendation, we will examine the Company's pro forma expense claims. Specific areas of scrutiny may include salaries and wages, benefits, inflation adjustments, uncollectibles, affiliated interest charges, and other issues. Adjustments will be proposed where appropriate. In addition, we will review the Company's pro forma income tax claims.

After reviewing the Company's filing, and making specific adjustments to rate base, pro forma revenue and expenses, and taxes, we will then develop our recommended revenue increase/decrease.

We will work closely with CAD to apply our recommended revenue requirement to CAD's recommended rate structure.

Following is a discussion of some of the issues likely to be encountered in this proceeding.

1. Test Year - The test year selected will be reviewed to determine whether it represents a period of time of normal operating conditions and financial results.

2. Plant In Service - We will review the Company's plant in service claim to determine whether the plant claimed is used and useful in providing utility service. As part of this review, we will evaluate the history of the Company with regard to completed construction relative to budgeted construction.
3. Construction Work In Progress - We generally recommend the exclusion of construction work in progress from rate base, on the basis that such plant is not used and useful in the provision of utility service. Any claim for the inclusion of construction work in progress in rate base will be evaluated in view of the Company's cash flow requirements.
4. Advances for Construction - These funds are cost free sources of capital and should be deducted from rate base. To the extent that these advances have not been fully repaid and/or the advance period has expired, these funds should be transferred to contributions in aid of construction.
5. Contributions in Aid of Construction - These funds are also cost free sources of capital and should be deducted from rate base.
6. Depreciation Reserve - We will ensure that the Company's depreciation reserve claim is consistent with its depreciation expense claims. In many cases, utilities propose a full year of depreciation expense on test year plant additions, but include only one-half year of depreciation reserve in its rate base claim.

7. Accumulated Deferred Income Taxes - This balance represents cost free capital to the Company and should be an offset to rate base or should be included in the capital structure of the Company as zero cost capital.
8. Cash Working Capital - We will evaluate the cash working capital claim made by the Company. We prefer the use of a lead/lag study to determine cash working capital requirements, and we recommend that such a study be performed if a utility is large enough to warrant this undertaking. If a lead/lag study is provided, we will ensure that all non-cash items have been excluded, such as depreciation expense and deferred taxes. In addition, we will recommend the inclusion of cash working capital provided by interest expense in the study, if not included by the Company. We will also review for reasonableness the lead/lag days used to develop the Company's claim.
9. Materials and Supplies - We will ensure that any claims for materials and supplies represent a normalized level. In addition, we may recommend that the average balance of materials and supplies be offset by the amount of cash working capital provided by the average monthly accounts payable associated with the materials and supplies monthly balances.
10. Other Rate Base Components - We will review all other rate base components to ensure that the Company's treatment is consistent with Commission precedent and good ratemaking practice.
11. Revenue - We will review all revenue claims and ensure that pro forma revenue has been appropriately annualized by the Company. Annualizations based on customer growth during the test year and normalizations based on normal operating conditions, including normal weather conditions, will be recommended where appropriate.

12. Miscellaneous Revenue - We will review the Company's treatment of miscellaneous revenue. We generally recommend that a normal level of miscellaneous revenue be included in the development of the Company's pro forma income claim.
13. Depreciation Expense on Contributions in Aid of Construction - We generally take the position that depreciation expense on contributions in aid of construction should be excluded from the Company's pro forma expense, on the basis that this expense represents a return of capital to investors, who never supplied the funds for this investment. Therefore, allowing depreciation expense on contributions results in a windfall to the Company's shareholders.
14. Salaries and Wages - We will fully explore several issues relating to the Company's salary and wage claims, including 1) proposed salary and wage increases, 2) proper annualization of test year increases, 3) overtime expense, 4) percentage of salaries and wages capitalized relative to historical levels, and 5) employee levels and vacancy rates.
15. Benefit Expense - Benefit costs continue to be one of the fastest growing expense items for utilities. We generally take the position that estimated increases should not be reflected in rates, and require that utilities provide notification of rate increases from their carriers in order to achieve rate recognition.

16. Pension and OPEB Expense - We will examine any claims by the Company for recovery of pension expenses and/or other post-employment benefit (“OPEB”) costs. It is possible that the Company’s pension fund is fully funded at this time, and therefore no cash contribution is required. If such is the case, we will oppose any claims by the Company for reflection of pension expenses in utility rates. With regard to OPEB costs, we will evaluate the annual accrual expense as well as the annual out-of-pocket payments. We generally recommend that the utility fund its OPEB liability in order to achieve recognition of the expense in rates.
17. Affiliated Interest Transactions - We will evaluate any affiliated interest transactions entered into by the Company. Any affiliated transactions should involve products and services necessary for the provision of utility service. In addition, a utility should demonstrate that these products and services are being provided at reasonable cost, and that the allocation methodologies used to allocate costs among subsidiaries appropriately reflect cost causation.
18. Promotional Advertising, Marketing, Lobbying, and Political Activity - These are all expense items that we have opposed in previous proceedings. We will review the filing to identify issues in these areas and we will propose adjustments that are consistent with the policies of the Commission.

19. Rate Case Expense - We generally prefer that rate case expenses be normalized, rather than amortized, to avoid violation of the prohibition regarding retroactive ratemaking. We will review all supporting material provided to support the Company's claim, and make recommendations regarding the size of the rate case expense claim as well as the recovery period.
20. Inflation Adjustments - We generally oppose the application of inflation adjustments. We are especially critical of any inflation adjustments applied to the historic test year.
21. Other O&M Adjustments - We will critically review each expense adjustment proposed by the Company to ensure that such adjustments reflect known and measurable changes to the test year results.
22. Consolidated Income Taxes - We have successfully sponsored consolidated income tax adjustments in many states. Since many utilities file their federal income tax returns as part of a consolidated group, they can take advantage of tax losses experienced by affiliated companies. We generally recommend an adjustment based on the modified effective federal income tax rate, unless a Commission has a policy of determining federal income taxes on a standalone basis.

IV. WORK PLAN

This engagement will be implemented by delivery of the following services:

1. Review of the Filing

The testimony, exhibits, workpapers, rate sheets, and other material filed by the Company will be reviewed in detail. Special emphasis will be placed on determining that Commission policy and practice have been followed by the Company. A preliminary summary of the issues in the case, and their approximate dollar impact, will be prepared as soon as practical.

2. Preparation of Discovery

Based upon our review of the Company's filing, we will issue formal interrogatories. The responses to these interrogatories will be carefully reviewed and follow-up or additional interrogatories will be propounded. We strongly believe in the informal discovery process and we will make ourselves available to visit the Company's offices to meet with their personnel, review relevant data, and solicit other materials or data as may be necessary to complete the investigation. In addition, we will respond in a timely manner to data requests that are propounded upon The Columbia Group, Inc. as a result of testimony filed by Columbia personnel.

3. Analysis of the Company's Direct Case

The preliminary issue list will be updated based upon the discovery aspects of our investigation and any input provided by CAD or its other consultants. We will discuss the completed issue list with CAD to ensure that all parties have a full understanding of all pertinent issues and views.

4. Assistance in Cross-Examination

We will assist in identifying lines of cross-examination and in preparing cross-examination questions for the positions taken by all parties in the proceeding. Proposed questions, relevant material, and a synopsis explaining the line of cross-examination will be furnished to CAD. We will also furnish on-site assistance during the actual cross-examination.

5. Submission of Direct, Supplemental, and Surrebuttal Testimony

A draft copy of our direct testimony will be provided to CAD at least one week prior to the filing date. In addition, to the extent necessary, supplemental and surrebuttal testimony and exhibits will be prepared. Columbia personnel will also stand for cross-examination on all testimony submitted by them.

6. Summary of the Parties' Issues

We will review and prepare a summary of the issues raised by all parties. This summary will include a quantification by issue.

7. Technical Assistance with Briefs and Oral Arguments

We will continue to provide technical assistance during the time that briefs and reply briefs are being prepared. This will include review of the briefs filed by other parties in the proceeding.

8. Other Technical Assistance

We will provide other assistance to CAD, including the provision of status reports, consultation with CAD and its other witnesses, and other assistance as may be required.

9. Review of the Commission's Order

We will review the order of the Commission and prepare a summary outlining how the Commission responded to our position on each issue.
