When Ralph Braun built his first power wheelchair in 1962, little did he realize the solution to his personal mobility would change the lives of thousands of individuals. It was the start of a new company, and the beginning of an industry that would slowly change the public's perception of people with disabilities.

Today, over 45 years later, Ralph remains the driving force behind the company and the industry he created. The tradition of excellence in customer service and quality products continues with the Entervan, the flagship of the BraunAbility line.

Having personally used his mobility aids from the very beginning, Ralph Braun invites you to place your confidence in the products bearing his family name.
