Re: CRFQ 0231 OOT2700000006, Temporary Technical Staffing Services

Dear Mr. Welch,

Broadview Technical Solutions Inc. submits this bid to provide temporary technical staffing to the West Virginia Office of Technology. We have priced all thirteen classifications, and every rate is fully loaded, so the figure on the Pricing Page is the figure the State will be invoiced, with no separate charges for travel, benefits, or overhead.

We would like to highlight four points for the Purchasing Division's consideration.

First, Broadview has provided information technology staffing and consulting services for more than five years. Records of our history are available to the Purchasing Division on request so that this qualification can be verified at any point before award.

Second, we have placed more than six individuals in the classifications this contract covers over the past five years, and each placement in the enclosed summary carries the client's name and a contact who can confirm it.

Third, we already operate a contract of this shape. Broadview holds a five-year task-order staff augmentation agreement with the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey for enterprise reporting, database, and application development roles. On that contract we have answered every task order within 24 hours and submitted qualified candidates within five business days.

Fourth, we take no exceptions to the solicitation. Our bid is offered without conditions and will be honored as submitted.

Broadview is a small, minority-owned business headquartered in Texas. We identify ourselves in this bid as a non-resident small and minority-owned business under West Virginia Code 5A-3-37 and W. Va. CSR 148-22-9, and we will complete certification under that rule before award.

I am the authorized representative for this bid and the designated Contract Administrator, and I can be reached directly at the numbers below. Thank you for the opportunity to bid.

Respectfully,

Muyiwa Fagbami

President, Broadview Technical Solutions Inc.

3. Qualifications

3.1 Years in business

Broadview Technical Solutions Inc. has provided information technology staffing and consulting services for more than five years. Records are available on request.

3.2 Individuals placed in the covered classifications

The placements below were made by Broadview within the past five years and correspond to classifications covered by this contract. Each names the client and a contact who can confirm the placement. Each individual listed met the mandatory qualifications of the named classification at the time of placement. Assignment dates, role descriptions, and qualification summaries for each individual are available on request. The names of placed staff are withheld from this public bid and will be provided directly to the Agency.

3.3 Firm profile

Broadview Technical Solutions is a project management consulting and IT services firm serving public and private sector organizations. The firm was founded in 2021, is structured as an S-Corporation, and operates under NAICS 541611, 541512, 541511, and 561311. We currently have 18 consultants placed with clients. Our staffing practice covers application development, data and database engineering, business and systems analysis, cloud engineering, security, and program management.

Our recruiting team is led by a technical recruiter with more than seven years of experience and supported by technical assessors with software engineering and analytics backgrounds, who screen every candidate against the specific requirement set before a resume reaches a client. The President serves as engagement lead and accountable executive on every staffing contract, and a Project Coordinator provides a named backup point of contact.

Insurance. Broadview carries Commercial General Liability of $2,000,000 per occurrence and $4,000,000 aggregate, Technology Errors and Omissions of $5,000,000, Hired and Non-Owned Automobile Liability of $2,000,000, and statutory Workers' Compensation with Employer's Liability of $1,000,000. All carriers are rated A+ by A.M. Best. Certificates naming the State of West Virginia will be furnished before award.

4. How Broadview Will Serve the Contract

Two things make this contract succeed for the Office of Technology: the right person arriving quickly when an agency issues an order, and State analysts being stronger when that person leaves than when they arrived. Our delivery model is built around both.

Responding to orders. We acknowledge each order in writing within one business day and name the recruiter and technical assessor assigned to it. Within five business days for the core classifications, and on a stated timeline for the specialized cloud and mainframe roles, we submit a shortlist of one to three candidates. Each submission includes a current resume, a qualification document that maps the candidate's experience item by item to the classification's requirements, copies of degrees where the classification requires one, two completed reference checks including at least one supervisor, and confirmed work authorization. The Agency should be able to confirm a candidate meets the classification from our qualification document alone, without searching the resume.

Screening. The classification definitions for this contract are precise about technologies and years, and we screen to that precision. Our technical assessors treat each requirement as a pass or fail gate, verify years and depth in a structured technical conversation before any resume is submitted, and record the result in the qualification document. We do not submit candidates who meet the title but not the definition.

Knowledge transfer. Every consultant we place is briefed that mentoring, training, and structured shadowing for State analysts are part of the assignment, not an addition to it. At kickoff we ask the Agency to name the State staff who will shadow the consultant, and our monthly check-in with the Agency contact includes a short knowledge-transfer summary, so that runbooks, training sessions, and hand-off material accumulate through the assignment rather than being assembled at the end.

Location and travel. We will staff on site in Charleston or anywhere else in West Virginia as each order specifies, and we support remote or hybrid arrangements where the Agency prefers them. Travel is included in our rates.

Retention and continuity. We hold check-ins with the consultant and the Agency contact at days 7, 30, 60, and 90 and monthly thereafter, and we maintain a warm bench for each classification so that a departure can be backfilled without an open-ended gap. Our rates on the specialized lines are set at levels that let us recruit for them; we do not price a line we could not staff.

Compliance and conduct. All placed staff complete the State's background check and screening requirements before starting, at Broadview's expense, and Broadview and its consultants follow the State's confidentiality and information security requirements throughout each assignment. Broadview performs this contract itself; no subcontractors are proposed.

5. Pricing Page

The rates below are fully loaded hourly bill rates. They include all wages, taxes, insurance, benefits, overhead, and travel, and they are firm for the full contract term including renewal periods. Hours are the State's evaluation estimates and are not a commitment by either party. The same unit prices will be entered on the thirteen commodity lines in wvOASIS.
