Extended Description:

Open-end contract for Direct Care Staffing Services

August 24, 2026

COVERAGE PLAN

CRFQ VNF2700000001 | Direct Care Staffing Services

The Facility controls the schedule, and Fusion Medical Staffing (FMS) will work from the request as issued. Coverage may include any length of assignment ranging from non-guaranteed PRN coverage to long-term contracts with guaranteed full-time hours. Before a clinician is submitted, FMS will confirm the requested discipline, shift, duration, weekend and holiday rotation, and known time off. The goal is to settle availability before placement, not after the schedule is built.

How requests are handled

A dedicated FMS Client Manager will be the Facility's working contact. When a need comes in, the Client Manager confirms the details and sends it to Fusion's nursing/direct-care recruiting team. The Facility will receive a clear update on available candidates, items still open, and anything that could affect a start date. FMS is available 24 hours a day, seven days a week for staffing issues, emergency requests, and complaints.

- For monthly staffing requests, FMS will identify available staff within the Facility's 24-hour response period. Recruiters will screen candidates against the requested schedule and assignment dates before confirming availability.
- For a short-notice opening, call-off, or other PRN gap, FMS will first review clinicians who are already cleared to work at the Facility. If that does not cover the need, the Client Manager will continue outreach to qualified staff who can meet the Facility's requirements and will keep the Facility updated on availability.
- Only staff who have completed required credentialing and Facility pre-start requirements will report for orientation or work.

Weekends, holidays, and other important dates

Weekend and holiday availability is addressed before submission. The recruiter will review the Facility's required monthly rotation with each candidate. Day-shift staff will be screened for the required weekend coverage, consisting of Saturday and Sunday, along with the required Friday day shift. Night-shift staff will be screened for weekend coverage consisting of Friday and Saturday, along with the required Sunday night shift. Holiday availability will also be confirmed before placement.

Other Important Dates are handled the same way. FMS will coordinate the required rotation and provide it to the Facility at least one month in advance. If a clinician has a known conflict, it will be disclosed before placement whenever possible.

When someone calls off

FMS will review the Facility's call-off rule with each clinician before the assignment starts. A clinician who needs to call off must contact the Facility, speak with the Supervisor, and notify FMS at least two hours before the scheduled shift. Voicemail does not satisfy the Facility's notification requirement.

If FMS receives a call-off or learns of a schedule or availability change, the Client Manager will notify the Facility promptly rather than allow the change to reach the Facility through the schedule. FMS will immediately check staff already approved to work at the Facility and make every possible effort to fill the opening with another qualified Agency Staff member. The Facility will be kept informed of who is available, whether a replacement has been confirmed, and the status of the open shift while viable options remain. No-call/no-shows and repeated attendance issues will be addressed through FMS's performance management process and, when necessary, replacement of the clinician.

Vacations and planned absences

Requested time off is collected during screening and disclosed before placement. If a planned absence comes up after an assignment starts, FMS expects the clinician to raise it as early as possible so the Facility and Client Manager have time to plan around it.

For a short gap, FMS will check qualified staff already cleared for the Facility. If the absence creates a longer opening, or if an assignment is ending, FMS will begin replacement or extension recruiting rather than wait until the final week.

Keeping long-term coverage intact

When a candidate fails to start, an assignment ends early, or the Facility has an ongoing increase in need, FMS will reopen the position right away and prioritize it across the nursing/direct-care recruiting team. Replacement candidates go through the same screening, credentialing, and Facility approval process as the original placement.

All clinicians placed by FMS are direct W-2 employees of Fusion Medical Staffing. Recruiting, credentialing, attendance follow-up, performance management, and replacement responsibility stay with FMS.

RECRUITING PLAN

CRFQ VNF2700000001 | Direct Care Staffing Services

Fusion Medical Staffing (FMS) will use a layered recruiting approach for the WV Veterans Nursing Facility, starting with clinicians already in West Virginia or within practical commuting distance of Clarksburg. From there, recruiters will widen the search to the regional market and, when needed, Fusion's national travel network. This gives the Facility several recruiting channels to draw from and allows us to adjust quickly when a particular shift or discipline becomes harder to fill.

Recruiting capacity behind the account

Fusion uses a specialty-based recruiting model rather than asking one generalist recruiter to cover every clinical role. The nursing and direct-care business is supported by over 50 recruiters who work with RNs, LPNs, CNAs/HSWs, and other nursing professionals. A dedicated Client Manager will own the WV Veterans Nursing Facility account and coordinate requests, candidate submissions, credentialing status, and start dates with the recruiting team.

Fusion's recruiting database contains more than 500,000 clinician profiles. Current recruiting data provided for this response defines an "active" profile as a clinician with a start date inside the next 60 days and shows 4,497 active RN profiles and 4,196 active nursing-support profiles, including LPNs and CNAs. Those numbers are not presented as a promise that every clinician is available for Clarksburg; they show the size of the pool our recruiters can work from before we move to new-source recruiting.

Clarksburg-first sourcing

Each request will begin with a focused search of Fusion's existing database for the right discipline, West Virginia license or certification status, long-term-care/direct-care experience, shift availability, and proximity to the assignment. Recruiters will re-engage prior applicants, past travelers, current West Virginia contacts, and referral sources before relying on a cold job-board response.

- Targeted digital advertising and search-optimized job postings will be built around the actual RN, LPN, or CNA/HSW opening and the requested shift, including nights, weekends, and holidays when applicable.
- Recruiters will use direct phone, text, and email outreach to passive candidates in addition to inbound job applicants.
- Fusion's referral program and ongoing talent communities will be used to reach clinicians who may not be actively applying but are open to local or travel contract work.
- For longer-term pipeline development, FMS will continue relationships with nursing and allied-health schools and professional associations and will use evergreen recruiting for high-demand nursing-support roles.

Regional and national reach when local supply is thin

If the local pool does not produce enough qualified staff, FMS will widen the search without changing the requirements. Recruiters will use Fusion's regional and national clinician network, including travelers willing to work in West Virginia, and will market the assignment with the real schedule and Facility expectations from the start. Fusion already has experience recruiting direct-care staff for West Virginia state facilities across RN, LPN, and CNA/HSW disciplines, so this is not a new compliance environment for our team.

Screen for the job before submission

Speed matters, but a fast submission that cannot work the schedule does not help the Facility. Recruiters will confirm the basics before a candidate moves forward: the requested discipline, relevant experience, shift, duration of the need, rotation availability, and willingness to follow the Facility's attendance and work-assignment rules. Candidates with lifting or hour restrictions that conflict with the solicitation will not be scheduled.

The compliance team will then complete the pre-placement requirements applicable to the role, including West Virginia license/certification verification, WVCARES background screening, 12-panel drug screening, CPR, references/resume, confidentiality documentation, WV Food Handlers Card, and any required physical, immunization, or licensure records. FMS will submit staff paperwork for Facility approval before the clinician arrives for orientation.

Keep the pipeline moving

Recruiting does not stop once the first placement is made. For recurring or ongoing RN, LPN, and CNA/HSW needs, recruiters will continue developing candidates for the account, particularly for shifts that have been harder to fill.

FMS will also stay in contact with clinicians already cleared to work at the Facility and review their availability when short or long-term openings come up. For longer vacancies, assignment endings, or increases in ongoing demand, the recruiting team will reopen sourcing and work the need through Fusion's local, regional, and national candidate pools.

The point is to keep qualified people moving toward the account without treating every short-term schedule gap like a new travel assignment.

Recruiting performance

The Client Manager and recruiting leadership will watch practical measures such as time to first qualified submission, time to fill, first-day show rate, early attrition, assignment completion, and Facility feedback. If a shift or discipline is not moving, we will change the sourcing mix - database outreach, referrals, advertising, or national travel recruiting - rather than keep repeating the same search and expecting a different result.

This plan is intended to meet Section 3.6.2 and support the staffing, qualification, and pre-placement requirements throughout Section 4 of the solicitation.
