

Weekly Surplus Deal Proves to be Beneficial to Division of Forestry's Buckhannon Office

The Division of Forestry's Buckhannon field office (above) utilized weekly surplus deals to furnish its conference room (below) for less than $100. Margaret Ingram, procurement officer for the Division of Forestry, noted that Surplus Property is a great option for organizations working on a tight budget.

The Purchasing Division encourages state agencies to utilize the West Virginia State Agency for Surplus Property (WVSASP) to meet their operational needs whenever possible. WVSASP offers good, usable property at an affordable price to eligible organizations throughout the state, including state agencies. One such agency is the Division of Forestry.

Margaret Ingram, procurement officer for the Division of Forestry, received a call from Travis Miller, a Forest Program Specialist in their Buckhannon field office, alerting her of their need for furniture to complete their conference room.

Ingram, who was previously employed by the Purchasing Division and was familiar with WVSASP, began to watch the Surplus Property weekly sales flyers for deals. Knowing that office chairs were on sale for $5 each, she paid a visit to the warehouse in Dunbar to view firsthand the merchandise they had in stock.

"We were fortunate to have the Surplus Property warehouse available to us to obtain furniture for our conference room," Ingram said. "Our field offices work on such tight budgets, so it is important that we use every mean available to us. The Surplus warehouse offers equipment and furniture

In a time when money is scarce and budgets are tight, the West Virginia State Agency for Surplus Property (WVSASP) offers its customers good, usable property at an affordable price. In addition to working directly with the public, WVSASP provides eligible organizations, including public agencies and non-profit organizations, the opportunity to furnish offices, meeting and living spaces, and recreation areas, dependent upon the property available at any given time, without breaking the bank.

To receive eligibility status, an organization must have an Application for Eligibility on file with WVSASP, along with a 501(3)c or some other evidence of the applicant's status. This eligibility status provides benefits to organizations not otherwise available to the public, including special item sales.

Typically, when property is retired to WVSASP, it is placed on a five-day hold for eligible organizations to inspect and request before it is made available to the public for purchase. When an item is purchased by an individual through WVSASP's public sales forum, that individual must pay for and remove the property that day.

Surplus Weekly Deals Make Used Property Even More Affordable to Our Customers

The West Virginia State Agency for Surplus Property's (WVSASP) goal has always been to sell or redistribute retired state property that is still in good condition to organizations or individuals with a need. There have been many ways for WVSASP to achieve this endeavor.

In the past, WVSASP would conduct Saturday auctions periodically where the property would be available for inspection one week in advance of the sale. On the day of the auction, individuals could acquire everything from furniture and commercial equipment to automobiles and office supplies.

As technology has advanced, so has the West Virginia State Agency for Surplus Property. Utilizing social media, namely its Facebook page, and our website at WVSurplus.gov, WVSASP began to market a weekly surplus deal. Whenever there is an abundance of the same commodity, WVSASP typically marks it down for a week or two. Not only does this help WVSASP clear out its warehouse to make room for new property, but it also gives the public and eligible organizations the best possible deal on these used items.

Recent weekly deals have included half-off copiers, printers, and plotters; $5 office chairs; up to 75 percent off filing cabinets; half-off furniture, including desks and credenzas; and more!

To view surplus weekly deals, visit us at WVSurplus.gov and click on the special offers link or visit us on Facebook by searching for "WV Surplus Property."

Progress Continues on the New Surplus Building

Crews began preparing the old vehicle lot (above) for construction in early fall. By late fall, they had begun to pour the footers and foundation (below). Surplus Property Manager Elizabeth Perdue said the project is expected to take one year, with a completion date set for August 2016.

Winter may be a slow time for many businesses, but this year, the season is a busy one at the West Virginia State Agency for Surplus Property (WVSASP). Demolition began in August on its new warehouse and administrative building. In early fall, the site was prepared, and by late fall, crews began pouring the footers and foundation.

While the current facilities at Surplus Property have served the agency well for many years, they were in need of many upgrades and repairs. Among the issues experienced was poor storm drainage and excess water, resulting often in flooding of the warehouse. To mitigate any chance of these issues from re-occurring, the new building will be built above the flood plain.

Construction of the new building is expected to be completed in August of 2016. Following the completion of this project, WVSASP will be housed in a 19,237 sq. ft. building that consists of a warehouse and storage area, as well as an administrative office area.

“Our hope is that the new Surplus Property building will offer a pleasant shopping experience to our customers,” said Surplus Property Manager Elizabeth Perdue. “Customers will be able to shop in a climate-controlled building and will no longer have to walk across the Surplus lot to shop for furniture, IT equipment, or other items of interest.”

ELIGIBILITY

However, an eligible organization may request that the item be placed on hold for an additional five days before payment and removal of the item must be made. This hold period may allow the eligible organization time to seek approval of the purchase from its Board of Directors, coordinate the transport of the item(s) from WVSASP to its place of business, or cut a check if the organization does not possess a credit card.

As part of the application, eligible organizations may also identify the types of property that the organization is interested in obtaining. WVSASP will periodically review this list and contact the organization should the property become available.

A copy of the Application for Eligibility can be found online at WV-Surplus.gov and should be completed and submitted to Surplus Property at 2700 Charles Avenue, Dunbar, WV 25064. For questions regarding this application, please call 304.766.2626 or 1.800.576.7587.

at prices that help us stay within our budget but also allow us to purchase what we need to operate," continued Ingram.

In addition to the ten $5 chairs that Ingram purchased, she also took advantage of a half-price sale in which she obtained a conference table for the room. To be exact, Ingram spent just $90 to furnish the conference room for the Buckhannon field office.

Ingram has worked with WVSASP on behalf of the Division of Forestry for the past two years. Although her purchases include primarily office supplies, she knows that WVSASP has an ever-changing stock that could meet her agency's need at any time. "The Surplus staff is great work with. They are very helpful," added Ingram.

Agencies are encouraged to check WVSASP's website often at WVSurplus.gov for the weekly deals that are posted.
