PART 2

OPERATING ENVIRONMENT

2.1 Location: West Virginia State Capitol Building is located at 1900 Kanawha Boulevard, East, in Charleston, WV.

2.2 Background: The purpose of the project is to design, paint and install designated murals for the West Virginia State Capitol Building, located at 1900 Kanawha Boulevard, East, Charleston, West Virginia 25305. These murals may include lunettes, pendentives, domed vaults or other surfaces described in this document. Work shall include all necessary labor, materials, installation, inspection of surfaces and other services necessary or incidental to the execution and installation of the final approved product. See the attachments for locations and approximate shapes and dimensions.

The West Virginia State Capitol was designed by Cass Gilbert, one of the most highly respected early Twentieth Century architects. Other of his major commissions included the Minnesota State Capitol, the Woolworth Building in New York, the United States Treasury Annex and the United States Supreme Court Buildings.

The West Virginia Capitol was constructed in three phases from 1923 to 1932; construction of the main unit occurred between 1930 and 1932. The building is in the neoclassical or Beaux-Arts style. Although murals and painted decoration were originally intended for the main unit of the Capitol building, their design and execution were postponed from the original construction due to constraints in the original project budget.

PART 3 PROCUREMENT SPECIFICATIONS

3.1 General Requirements:

Firm to provide all services necessary for the design, preparation and installation of murals for the West Virginia State Capitol as outlined in this EOI.

3.2 Project Description:

3.2.1 Style:

The composition and style of the murals must maintain the character and style of the overall building. West Virginia's Capitol has been referred to as the last of the neoclassical or Beaux-Arts state capitol buildings. Stylistically the building design dates from the 1890's through about 1930. Artistically this period includes the neoclassical, arts and crafts and into the Art Nouveau style. Although Cass Gilbert was known to utilize many architectural styles, in his later years he remained committed to the Beaux-Arts system and did not change to the modern style.

Possible stylistic references to the project include the work of Elmer Garnsey, who frequently worked with Cass Gilbert on major commissions. Other relevant examples include the mural works of Edwin Austin Abbey and George W. Maynard. Note that other styles from a slightly later period would not be appropriate for the building; inappropriate styles include modern, Art Deco, WPA and others indicative of the later 1930's.

3.2.2 Themes:

Cass Gilbert often suggested possible themes for murals that were in keeping with the intended use of the building; for example, at the U.S. Customhouse in New York, Mr. Gilbert suggested to Elmer Garnsey that possible themes could include 'famous ports of the past and present'. Although we know that Cass Gilbert had possible themes in mind for our Capitol, we can find no evidence of his putting these in writing. In the West Virginia Capitol much of the decoration is themed around the flora and fauna of the state. Overall themes may be suggested to the selected artist; the final theme and designs will be part of the artist's design as much as the committee's recommendation.

Traditionally rotunda themes have incorporated historical and allegorical representations; lunettes depict historical events and pendentives contain allegorical representations.

As part of the final product the State will require the artist to provide a written discussion of

State of West Virginia
Department of Administration
General Services Division

West Virginia State Capitol
Mural Design, Painting and Installation

each mural describing and explaining the theme, the historical scene represented and the artist's commentary on the development of the work.

3.2.3 Colors:

The following description was provided by Mr. Frederick Wiley of Paris & Wiley, the painting and decoration contractor: "Before any painting was done in the building, the color plan was carefully worked out by Mr. Gilbert and the painter who was directed the work on the job and the plan decided upon, has been sedulously followed (sic)."

Colors selected should include mauve, lilac, rust reds, soft yellow, gold, Pompeian red, and warm deep grays; color schemes should match other colors in the building and the color tones in the Imperial Danby marble walls.

Note that colors used during this period were very rich with overpaintings, tone stippling and tinted glazes and details of gold leaf. The new works should maintain traces of these early 1900's decorative finishes. The selected artist should be very familiar with historic painting techniques and commentary on these techniques should be included on the information package.

3.2.4 Initial inspection:

Wall and ceiling materials include plaster over terra-cotta clay tile walls and plaster over metal lath ceiling structures. Although no walls and ceilings are directly adjacent to exterior walls, some temperature variations should be expected along with the possibility of moisture penetration. Commentary on solutions should be proposed.

The walls should be carefully checked for damaged plaster prior to the start of the work and reviewed again by the artist. These inspections should be performed for water damage, moisture penetration and cracking. Remember that the wall is plaster directly attached to terracotta tile masonry. The limestone exterior walls have recently undergone cleaning, tuck-pointing, caulking and restoration. In addition we anticipate the main Capitol Building roofing and drainage will be replaced under other contracts, and this work will likely be completed and checked prior to the mural installation.

3.2.5 Technical Provisions:

Murals painted directly on plaster can be easily damaged by building movement, cracking plaster or water damage. As this is intended to be a long term installation, the completed murals should be painted on canvas supported on wood or metal stretchers. The installation of the completed mural shall include providing adequate support and edge finishing to place the work in front of the existing plaster or lightly adhered to the wall.

3.2.6 Copyright:

The completed work shall be the property of the State of West Virginia and works shall be copyrighted in the State's name. The State may reproduce work and shall retain all rights and royalties from such reproductions.

Intermediate sketches and approval drawings will become property of the State and should be turned over to West Virginia Division of Culture and History for preservation in the State Archives.

3.2.7 Multi-Media Documentation:

As the execution of this project may become part of the State's cultural heritage, a discussion of possibilities for documentation of the design process through various media should be part of the package.
