Addendum #1

Question #1 – Must have all tires filled with Polyfil: (Will Rimgard suffice?)

Answer #1 – NO. Rimguard (www.rimguard.biz) is a liquid fill tire ballast which will leak out, like calcium and alcohol fillers, and permit flats if a tire is punctured. Polyfil, i.e. Tyrfil G2 manufactured by Pathway Polymers (www.pathwaypolymers.com) is a polyurethane compound that is injected into a tire to provide ballast and replace liquids and air in the tire, making the tire impervious to flats from punctures or vandalism. Tyrfil is used in construction and skidder tires to prevent flats.

Since this tractor will be used in remote country populated with hawthorne and locust thorns, Polyfil, i.e. Tyrfil, was specified to be used as tire ballast to prevent flats and consequent tire repairs in areas where it would be impossible for tire repair technicians and equipment to access. Repair/transport of ballasted tractor tires is beyond the capability of DNR field personnel.

Question #2 – Must have a digging depth of at least 8': (Our manufacture provides a model with 7'8" of digging depth and one with 9'4" ONLY):

Answer #2 – NO. 9'4" backhoe digging depth would be acceptable, provided that it will perform within the specifications of the tractor.

Question #3 – Must have bolt-on shanks with pin-on teeth: (Our manufacture provides weld-onshanks with pin-on teeth)

Answer #3 – NO. Bolt on shanks and pin on teeth were specified for the same reasons Polyfil was specified in the tractor tires, i.e. field repairs in remote country without access to welders or other specialized equipment.
