TECHNICAL QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Question #1: CPTED has been identified as the primary design vernacular for the project. The RFP refers to other security standards, have these been specifically or generally identified?

Answer #1: Other standards are listed as a general reference.

Question #2: Is there a current masterplan available for the capitol campus? Is this or other design documentation available? (base mapping, etc.)

Answer #2: A copy of the master plan will be provided to the selected firm.

Question #3: What studies are available to the design team?

- a. Risk analysis
- b. Traffic studies
- c. Emergency planning
- d. COOP/COG plans

Answer #3: Generally these studies will not be required, however if needed applicable studies and information will be provided to the selected firm.

Question #4: The RFP calls for a final design submission to the Capitol Building Commission. What stakeholder input will be expected as part of the study process?

Answer #4: The Capitol Building Commission is a review committee whose role is to maintain the integrity of the Capitol Campus design. While providing approval of the final design, they are not a primary stakeholder.

Question #5: Will there be an opportunity to conduct a design charette to initiate the design process?

Answer #5: Yes

Question #6: Will the State require CPTED certification for multiple disciplines of the design team or just security personnel?

Answer #6: We want to follow CPTED standards. Certification of team members, although preferable is not a design requirement.
