ATTACHMENT A

Q.1. Section 3.1.2.1, what is a "floating dovetail"? Is it a version of a beavertail extension to the deck?

A.1. Dovetail is that 4' – 5' end portion of the deck that slopes downward to facilitate easier equipment loading. Floating means that the dovetail can be adjusted up to match the height of the trailer deck or lowered to the standard dove tail angle for loading of equipment.

Q.2. On the front page of the package they are asking for "dual-axle Heavy duty Cargo trailer", but on the page 4 under the specs, they don't specify a dual axle? Which way should I quote it, most 6 x 12 enclosed trailers are single axle.

A.2. The "dual-axle" description on the Solicitation page is a typographical error. The specifications detailed in item 3.1.3. are correct.

Q.3. Please define floating dove tail for the gooseneck deck over trailers? Are you looking for a dove tail with a center pop to give 25ft of flat deck if needed?

A.3. Floating means that the dovetail can be adjusted up to match the height of the trailer deck or lowered to the standard dove tail angle for loading of equipment.

Q.4. 15,600 GVWR ? How much weight are you looking to have your trailer rated to haul ? You have requested 7,000 LB axles which would give the trailer a 14,000 GVWR rating. The GVWR rating you have requested can only be accomplished by using 8,000 LB axles. However there is a small difference between 8,000 and 10,000 lb axles.

A.4. There are many manufacturers that have 15,600 – 16,000 GVWR-rated trailers which have two, 7,000 lb. axles (G.A.W.R.). Trailer should be able to handle a payload up to 9,500 lbs.

Q.5. You have requested 2" treated hardwood decking. Please define hardwood? Typical treated decking is pine and not hardwood.

A.5. A 2" treated pine deck would meet this specification.

Q.6. On the dump trailer requested how much weight are you looking to haul? 3,500 lb axles under a 6x10 dump trailer will limit your payload to 5,000 lb.

A.6. Up to 5,000 lbs.

Q.7. Dump trailers come standard with a wired remote. Do you desire a wireless remote?

A.7. Not required as part of bid.

To clarify the following sections; 3.1.1.3, 3.1.2.3 & 3.1.5.3 - "Must have a minimum GVWR. of 15,600 lbs."

Since this is a minimum requirement, any GVWR above 15,600 would qualify.
